The transportation sector is currently one of the largest contributors to greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions in Indonesia, accounting for roughly 22% to 25% of the national total. Road transport dominates this footprint, contributing nearly 90% of those specific emissions.

Indonesia has set an ambitious Nationally Determined Contribution (NDC) target to reduce emissions by at least 31.89% independently by 2030. The transition toward sustainable mobility is already underway. Today, the industry is rapidly advancing by maximizing energy efficiency.
